Small talk is good to a certain extent when mixed with something better; but the eternal repetition of nothing in fine language, or the scuseless jubber of those who only speak that some voice may be heard, is scarcely beamble, and all the efforts of society in general should be directed to checking too great a development of this evil.

EXTRAURDINARY CASE OF ARSON. At Lambeth Police-court, Mary Ann Butler, aged 16, domestic servant, was charged an remand on suspicion of having unlawfully set fire to the house, 384, Clapham-road, on the 1st November. A lad named Hutchins, alluded to by prisoner, was now examined, and he stated that he found a half-burnt lucifer-match on prisoner had also, in his presence, upplied a lighted piece of paper to a gas pipe in the kitchen, and a flame some six inches in length burst forth from what afterwards appeared to be a cut in the metal. He told her to put out | WHITE SHIRTINGS, 68 a 60 reed. the flame. He was in the garden when the fire WHITE BROCADES, in the bedroom took place. The prisoner came AMERICAN DRIELS, 30 yards to him in the garden, and made some remark about the gravel he was putting down. Then, Grav T-Clorus, 24 yds & 82 in. 7 lbs., without any alarm of fire being given from the bouse, she seked him to come in and see what bouse, she asked him to come in and see what Drap Brocans Do. was the matter. He went to the house, and Drep DARAGE then heard a cry of fire, but not before. Mr. CHINTE, for trial, but would order a remand for the completion of the case. It was here stated Valvers, Black, 22 ins. per yard 0.18 a 0.19 that prisoner, it was believed, was not in her right senses. THE "TELEGRAPH" ON THE OVER-END-GURNEY CASE In the midet of revived prosperity the memories of old disasters still revisit us. The case of Court of Chancery yesterday, a gentleman named Peck, who had purchased shares to the amount of £100,000 in the unfortunate Company, endeavouring to make the Directors LEAD, many ground that the prospectue issued by the Direc-. tors did not disclose facts which, if known, shares in the concern, the same facts being within their own knowledge. The Master of the Rolls, after hearing the case, held that this allegation of the plaintiff had been es- ALUR, pany knew that the old firm whose business was taken over was insolvent, and that the public was to be asked for money in order to relieve the partners of their difficulties. Doubtless the new Directors believed the limited liability concorn would be a prosperous one; but if the real state of the case had been known to the public, not a share in it would have been taken. Of a criminal intention to defraud, the Directors had been proporly acquitted in a court of law; but acourt of equity required that a person who induced another person to enter into a contract by a concealment of information, which it was important he should possess, should make good the loss arising from his want of candour. In this particular case the plaintiff lost any benefit he might have derived from this principle of equity through his own delay; but the Judge, in dismissing his bill, left the defendants to bear their own costs, because of what he described as their gross misconduct. This is undoubtedly a right decision. The public would doubtless have been content to hear no more of the unhappy Directors of this FLOUR, California, per sack of 50 hs. Company; but if their affairs must be brought forward, we can only be glad that the voice of justice should speak no dubious language. Just now, when enterprise is brick, it may not be in vain that one of our judges has thus cleurly said down the duties of directors of new companies,
